

Steve Hackett - Spectral Mornings

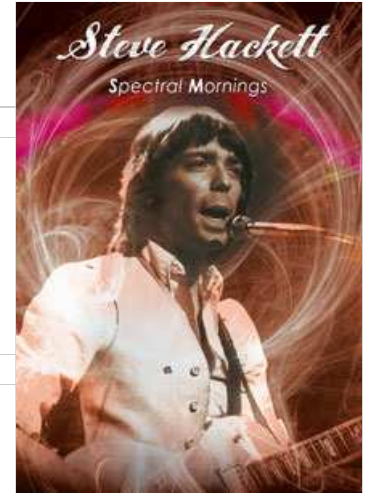

Steve Hackett, member of Genesis, releases Spectral Mornings, a concert filmed for German Television in 1978.

DESCRIPTION

This concert recording was the last date on the hugely successful tour although only the fourteenth concert the band had played so from a historical point of view this was right at the start of Steve's solo career and as such captures a moment in time. The band performed a shortened set for the television cameras and it has been mastered in the NTSC format in order that American and Japanese fans may also now enjoy this historical performance. This DVD was originally available as a VHS tape and briefly as a DVD. As an added bonus we have included tracks filmed at the same time as this performance but for some reason these tracks were not included in the broadcast. These tracks have now been included and the set now represents the actual running order of the complete performance. Over thirty years on from his departure from Genesis Steve Hackett retains a large and dedicated fan base making this release all the more desirable.
